

Arts Practice

Following my recent return to education from working in industry, I am particularly interested in delivering ceramic workshops to school and community groups which will promote community cohesion and result in permanent installations in local schools and public spaces.

I specialise in ceramics - tile panels, hand made tile murals, sculptural and moulded forms, pottery, mouldmaking, mosaic, glass fusing and non-toxic resin. I am also practiced at working with a variety of art and craft materials including, paint, , paper, card, recycled materials and mixed media.

Workshops will be structured around the requirements of the curriculum, or can be topic based and will be designed for all age groups and learning abilities.

Everyone gets to participate either individually building confidence, or collaboratively promoting group cohesion.

The engagement of each individual is paramount to raising the aspirations, achievements and well being of all learners.

I liaise closely with teachers from planning to delivery and projects can be one off workshops, run over several sessions or even designed for teaching staff to implement themselves.
